

In the days before fences separated _____ ranch from the next, the prairie none joke one _____ wide-open to everyone. Ranchers simply _____ their cattle loose and let them was is don't moved turned lark _____ as they wished. During the year, _____ cattle wandered off in all directions, graze smell grass a the ranches _____ by ones or twos, sometimes in _____. As they roamed miles from their may run sometimes jungles do bunches _____ range, they mixed and mingled with _____ from other ranches, unmindful of who away rest home help kind cattle _____ them. Twice a year, in the _____ and again in the fall, roundups owned reward seemed later jester spring _____ held throughout the ranching country to _____ these widely scattered long horns were is do smell front gather and _____ them out. run sort is

“The busiest time on _____ ranch is the preparation for the _____ roundups,” all the rest spring month drab said a Texas cowhand. “There _____ saddles to mend, hobbles to make, _____ wagons is hold are spark just grub to overhaul and horses _____ get into shape, shoeing and _____ up, quilts to make, rope to as wet reminding trimming seem to _____ up, and planning till you can't _____.”

 shut green straighten rest open house

In many ways a roundup resembled _____ military campaign. Cowboys from neighboring the just a ranches _____ together to hunt down all the _____ in a particular district. A really smelled fish worked odor cattle help _____ spring roundup might cover hundreds of _____ miles, last for several weeks, and big swell twice round the square _____ three or four hundred cowboys from _____ dozen different ranches. involve recruit a or a and

A few days _____ a roundup was to start, chuck _____ drawn by teams of before within rest wagons of down mules began _____ arrive at a chosen meeting place. _____ were followed by a group as down to They He Went of _____ coming from all directions, driving herds _____ saddle ponies. While waiting cowboys lids front as of down at the _____ for everyone to show up, the _____ had a chance to wander from campgrounds windows resemble cups cowboys open _____ to wagon.

wagon go fork