

Abraham Lincoln wasn't a man who _____ lose himself in a crowd. After _____ did under could _____, he stood six feet four inches _____, and to top it off, he _____ a all some hold under tall of rode can wore high silk hat.

His height _____ mostly in his long bony legs. _____ he sat in a chair, he were going was How When Lean _____ no taller than anyone else. It _____ only when he stood up that seemed dwelled ran it you was _____ towered above most men. he it under

At first _____, most people thought he was homely. Lincoln _____ it too, armor glance as grew settle thought referring once to his "_____, lean, lank face." As a young _____ he was sensitive to wild fire poor jungle man form his gawky _____, but in time, he learned to _____ at himself. When a rival called understandings as looks jump laugh as _____ 'two faced' during a political debate, Lincoln _____: "I leave it to my audience, it help him replied of opened _____ I had another face, do you _____ I'd wear this one?" how it if groan desk think

According to _____ who knew him, Lincoln was a _____ of many faces. In it youth those man lark just repose, he _____ seemed sad and gloomy. But when _____ began to speak, his many often it them new he expression changed. "_____ dull listless features dropped like a _____," said a The An Deemed jump in mask Chicago newspaperman. "The eyes _____ to sparkle, the mouth to smile, _____ whole opened front began an go the countenance was wreathed in animation, _____ stranger would have said, 'Why, a them so _____ man, so angular and solemn a _____ ago, is really handsome!" those as this righteous gold moment

Lincoln was _____ most photographed man of his time, _____ his friends the an some or under but insisted that no camera _____ did him justice. Its no wonder. _____ then photographs, sometimes ever rest Over Rest Back required long exposures. The _____ being photographed had to “freeze” as the shuttle used person seconds _____ by.

ticked dripped swan