

THINKING MATTERS:

A University of Southern Maine Student Research, Scholarship, and Creativity Symposium

APRIL 21, 2006

Thinking Matters, an annual event, is a University-wide exhibition of student research, scholarship, and creative achievement on the Portland campus.

Students from Prof. Lorryne Carroll's ENG 230 - Literacy Studies class have been invited to present at Thinking Matters this year. Prof. Carroll's students will present two panels:

SERVICE LEARNING AND INTERGENERATIONAL LITERACIES:

Wendy Ambrose, Jennifer Arno, Meggin Chase, Juanita Phillips, and David Wentworth discuss their service learning work in a Gorham senior citizen housing complex and in Parkside's Headstart program. They are joined by former 230 student and English major Jesyca Hagelin, who will be reporting on her internship with a local children's book publisher, Curious City.

SERVICE LEARNING AND CROSS-CULTURAL LITERACIES:

Jessica Cowie, John Hamilton, Jennifer Murray, Donna Olsen, and Andrew Smith will discuss their service learning work at Portland West in the EvenStart adult program and the Community After-school Program.

For more information about Literacy Studies,
please contact:

Prof. Lorryne Carroll

3B Luther Bonney

780-4324

lorryne@usm.maine.edu