CONSULTING ACTIVITY

Provided a financial analysis report to The Corporate Library in Portland, Maine, that predicted the corporate acquisition of MBNA Corporation (June 2006).

Contributor to, and researcher for, an expert witness report written for the Internal Revenue Service (serving with Professor James Wheeler, University of Michigan) in United Parcel Service of America, et al. v. Commissioner, TC Memo 1999-268. Involving captive insurance, the case found UPS liable for $64.9 million in taxes and $300 million in interest. Because other open tax years are likely to be treated similarly, UPS, upon learning of the decision, incurred a $1.44 billion charge against reported financial income for related expected tax and interest liability (1999).

INSTRUCTIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Financial Statement Analysis and Valuation (ACC 632), Spring 2004. Developed the initial offering of this case course at the University of Southern Maine.

Robert M. Trueblood accounting and auditing case study series for professors, March 23-25, 2000. Attended three-day case study seminar in Scottsdale, Arizona, sponsored by Deloitte & Touche Foundation.

Financial Statement Analysis, Fall 1998. Developed the initial offering of this case course at Copenhagen Business School, adapting leading-edge content and methods from instructors at Columbia University, Boston College, and University of Texas at Austin.

ACC 660 - Analysis and Decision-Making, Spring 1995. Developed the initial offering of this case-based course with an emphasis on utilizing current information technology.

ACC 407 - Taxation of business entities, Spring 1994. Introduced active (vis-a-vis passive) learning techniques through a computerized tutorial and promoted interpersonal communication skills through a team learning approach.

BUS 652 - Financial Accounting, Fall 1993. Developed and presented an active learning tutorial consisting of an interactive computer program and a role-playing game.

“You can be an even better teacher,” August 9, 1992, Washington, DC. Attended teaching workshop sponsored by the American Accounting Association and presented by Professors Peter Wilson (Harvard University) and Tom Dyckman (Cornell University).
